

Uncontested Divorce Form

Getting a divorce comes with closure and a new beginning. We are here to help you move forward. Please complete this form as thoroughly as possible so we can review the essential information and identify the items for discussion with you.

Please note: This form is for use in connection with completing court forms associated with a British Columbia uncontested divorce. It is not designed to deal with division of assets, children or support. This form may not elicit from you all the information you wish to give us or that we will wish to obtain from you. This form assumes that only British Columbia law applies to you.

PLEASE PRINT CLEARLY. Fields marked with * are required

C. Children of the Marriage

The word "child" includes a child of your marriage, step child, and an adopted child. The legal term is children of the marriage.

Legally, the court is only concerned with children of the marriage. If you had children with your spouse, but the children are over the age of majority (19 in B.C.) and independent, they are no longer considered 'children of the marriage' under the Divorce Act, and you do not need to include their information in your divorce documents. Or, if you wish, you can name them in your documents, and indicate that they are 19 or over and independent, and no longer requiring support.

Do you and your spouse have any children?  Yes  No
